Coming to America: My Long Journey to Freedom!

Alex Nagy was born in Budapest, Hungary just as WWII broke out.

He grew up under Communism and escaped to Austria after the defeat of the 1956 Hungarian Revolution.

He spent two years in Austria and from there he came to the U.S. in 1958 on a full scholarship to continue his education.

He attended Muskingum College, where he earned his Bachelor of Science degree in Physics and Mathematics.

He met the love of his life at Muskingum and two weeks after graduation they were married.

This book is a biographical account of his life from childhood to retirement. It is also a testament to his search for freedom and his love of this great country.
